Flow found an issue with how collaboration metrics are calculated in some workflows. In some cases, Flow was incorrectly calculating the time it took to respond to a comment with a commit or another comment. The issue is fixed, and metrics will automatically update accordingly over the coming week. Both historical and current metrics will be updated.

The issue affected the underlying data that produces the following metrics: responsiveness, comments addressed, receptiveness, influence, and follow on commits. You may see changes in these metrics, but it does not appear that these changes will be drastic.

If you need help, please email support@pluralsight.com for 24/7 assistance.